Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

SUICIDE OVER UNREQUITED LOVE.

Frederick W. Emerson, the wealthy Bostonian and classmate of President Roosevelt at Harvard, who shot himself in his summer home at Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks a few days ago, committed suicide because of his unrequited love for a beautiful young woman.

It is now known that Emerson during the last few years of his life had a consuming passion for an Adirondack maiden of the French-Canadian race, and that the tragedy that took place on the shores of the mountain lake was the culmination of her marriage to a Canadian physician and the realization that she was lost to him forever.

The object of Mr. Emerson's affection was a product of the north woods, untutored, uncultured, but with all the vivacity and charm of the race from which she had sprung. Emerson was thrown constantly in contact with her, and, it is said, again and again endeavored to make her his wife. But a great obstacle stood in the way. He was not of her faith, and though respecting him as a friend, she could not take him as her husband. From the hour of her marriage to the physician Emerson was a changed man, and frequently stated to intimate friends that his life would be forever intolerable to him.

ENTIRE FAMILY DROWNED.

An entire family, consisting of William Eidleman, aged 38 years; his wife Elizabeth, aged 37, and their two children, Anna, aged 17, and William, aged 7, of West Pensauken, N. J., were drowned in Pensauken creek, below Riverton, N. J., yesterday by the capsizing of a small rowboat.

The family was taking an outing partly in celebration of the fact that the father had just cleared off the mortgage on a home he had purchased.

While rowing down Pensauken creek, which empties into the Delaware river, near Riverton, the little craft was caught in the swift current and carried against a scow moored in the stream. The boat was overturned and all the occupants thrown into the water.

Eidleman was seen swimming in the swift current with his son, but spectators did not realize that an accident had occurred until they heard Eidleman shout for help. Before assistance could reach him the father sank with his son. The mother and daughter sank before the father and son.

Persons who saw the boat farther up the stream before it was wrecked say there were five or six persons in it.

CHARGE AGAINST A FATHER.

A dispatch from Independence, Grayson county, says Lewis Wingate, of Flat Ridge, that county, has been arrested and jailed, charged with the murder of his twelve year old son. The boy died under suspicious circumstances, so much so that the authorities were notified.

The body was taken up and an autopsy was held. They found, it is stated, that the child had been horribly beaten and that every one of his teeth has been pulled out with a pair of pliers. Besides, there was nothing in the child's stomach except a little water, so it seemed to the doctors that the child had not only been beaten, but starved. The evidence against the father was sufficient to warrant his arrest and incarceration in jail.

THIEVES LOOKED IN A CAR.

Recent robberies on the New York Central Railroad aggregating in the neighborhood of $100,000 are expected to be cleared, in part, at least, through the arrest of Donato Daddonro and Frank B. Bendetto. After breaking the seal these men forced their way into a freight car at Chatham, N. Y. They were trapped in the car and carried to New York. Conductor Richardson saw the men force their way into the car, which contained many thousand dollars worth of silk. When they were inside the conductor slipped up and closed and locked the door. With the prisoners safe the train proceeded to New York. Arriving at the yards in that city 15 hours later the car was opened and two exhausted prisoners were taken out.

Will Not Oppose Wedding.

Vienna, May 31.—The family of Princess Amelia Rouise, of Furstenburg, has just announced that it will no longer oppose the wedding of the princess and Gustav Kozian, an employe of an automobile firm, with whom she eloped. The conclusion does not mean that the royal family is reconciled to the marriage for a ban against the return of the couple to Vienna will probably be issued. As the princess carried away with her gems of the value of $200,000 the family realized that it had small chance of preventing the marriage.

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER

MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 1, 1908

WHY DID not Congress determine on a day for adjournment sufficiently far enough in advance to insure the winding up of legislation by that day and yet relieve the country of suspense? Simply because Speaker Cannon would not let the Senate have the upper hold on an appropriation bill. An experience the speaker had back in the Fifty-seventh Congress, when he was chairman of the committee on appropriations taught him a lesson. He swore everlasting vengeance, and he has stuck to the faith like an adhesive plaster ever since. In the closing days of that Congress, the unsuspecting representatives in the lower house had agreed some time in advance to a day of adjourning the long session. There was a determined tie-up of one of the big appropriation bills, Senator Tillman insisting that a large section of South Carolina be purchased for the use of the government. As unmindful of adjournment as a cow is of flies in January, Tillman and the other Senate conferees stood firm. They stood so long that Mr. Cannon and the House had to agree to the South Carolina item in order to get the bill through without an extra session. Not since that day has the House and Senate entered into a positive agreement to adjourn until a few hours before the time. A tentative arrangement among the leaders may be reached about get away day but Mr. Cannon invariably lets it be understood that he is not bound by it, so if the Senate gets to cutting up, he can chastise it. The speaker prefers to rush through the resolution of adjournment sometime between the 11th and 12th hours, depending on the demeanor of the Senate.

CHARLES LEATHAN, Mayor of Cumberland, Md., has handed in his resignation to the City Council. His action is said to have been actuated by criticism, some of his constituents having insinuated that he was being "worked" by a certain political faction. Mr. Leathan evidently failed to count the cost before he assumed the duties and responsibilities of chief executive of the city. To fill such a position without stirring up critics would be an impossibility, as a certain percentage of every place devote much of their time in croaking at those in high positions. Should the mayor of a city endeavor to carry out all the laws to the letter, some will sneer and take issue with him; while, on the other hand, should he construe statutes in their broadest and most liberal sense the same class will indulge in harsh criticism. The mayor of Cumberland should not have retired under fire, but, after having placed his hand to the plough, not looking to the right or left, it became his duty to enforce the laws conscientiously, and doubtless at the end of his term he would have received the endorsement of those persons in the community whose opinions are of any value.

WHAT has Congress done? Nothing of real value to the people. It stood pat and let bad enough alone. More money was appropriated than present high taxes will produce income so that it is estimated there will be a shortage of $150,000,000 for the coming fiscal year.

THE world has witnessed the spectacle of an entire nation in doubtful hope that a handful of senators might defeat a vicious currency law that both houses of Congress insisted on forcing upon the people. And yet they call this a representative government!

THE republicans declared that Congress would not adjourn until the public buildings bill was signed by the president or passed over his vote. The republican cry was "pork" at any price.

THE currency bill was fixed up by the conference committee to suit Wall street, and the frenzied financiers. Certainly the republican party "does things."

SPRING has come and gone and summer is upon us before many realized how rapidly the seasons change. Truly time flies.

CONGRESS has adjourned and the country will breath freer.

From Washington.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.

The Capitol today looked like a banquet hall deserted. Not a member of either house was to be seen at the noon hour and many of the employees had disappeared. The House press gallery closed this evening and that on the Senate side will close in a day or two. Seldom, if ever, has there been such an exodus of congressman from the city. The vice president and speaker both left yesterday and today few senators or members are left in Washington. Many of the latter, both democrats and republicans, are much concerned as to their re-election.

The Congressional Record for today is a bulky one. It contains a large number of speeches under the rule allowing members to print remarks never delivered on the House floor. The filibuster had kept many speeches out before adjournment. These speeches bear dates running back for weeks, giving the appearance of having been delivered when the subjects they refer to were under consideration in the House. Minority Leader Williams, who led the fight against the passage of the resolution granting "leave to print," is among the first to avail himself of the privilege by inserting a speech on the currency question. A number of other democrats follow suit, most of them apologizing for using the Record, after having voted against the resolution authorizing it. One of the most acrid speeches printed is that of Mr. Smith (dem. Mo.,) who discusses "labor and its demand ignored by a republican Congress." Ohio is represented with speeches by Mr. Lanning on national corporations, and by Mr. Bannon, who seeks to furnish proof that the negroes of Ohio will vote the republican ticket this fall.

Every democratic senator present in the Senate on Saturday evening, twenty-two, voted against the currency bill. Senator Daniel was among them, but Senator Martin had gone to his home early in the week and had not returned.

The republican platform will be written at the White House at conferences to begin today. Practically all of the work will be on the tariff plank. Taft has announced repeatedly that he believes there should be revision that will be perceptible to the naked eye. Reconciliation of the position of the candidate with the large element of stand patters is the difficult task before the conferees.

President Roosevelt pressed an electric button at 11 a. m. today, which started the celebration at Kingston, N. Y., of the 250th anniversary of the founding of that town. In connection with the birthday celebration, Kingston is today reburying the remains of George Clinton, first governor of New York state and twice vice president of the United States.

An effort will be made this week to restore the eyesight of Senator Gore, of Oklahoma. He will undergo treatment at the Episcopal Eye and Ear Hospital in this city. Dr. Wilmer, the oculist, has hopes that the Senator's eyesight may be restored.

H. Clay Pierce, the oil magnate, must submit to being taken back to Texas from Missouri under arrest to answer to an indictment for false swearing in the attempt of Texas to oust the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, of which Pierce is president from that State. The U. S. Supreme Court so decided today. Pierce is under arrest in St. Louis and sought his release in habeas corpus proceedings, claiming the indictment was insufficient. The supreme court held opposite views of the indictment.

A bench warrant was issued by the supreme court of the District of Columbia today for Theodore H. Price, the millionaire cotton king; Moses Hass, and Frederick A. Peckham, all of New York, for their removal to Washington to answer to an indictment in connection with a "leak" on cotton reports by the Department of Agriculture. The warrants will be sent to the district attorney's office in New York for service.

Secretary Taft's explanation of his reference to General Grant's alleged weakness for liquor, in his Memorial Day address at New York, has brought the incident still more into the limelight, in view of its possible effect upon the secretary's political aspirations. The secretary's friends are of the opinion that the address could not be taken as anything but a tribute, even without the after-interpretation he made. They will not even admit that the secretary erred in putting forth General Grant's fault, in order to show the tremendous triumph he won in the end. They ridicule the idea that the address will be used as campaign material by the opposition. On the other hand, the explanation has not entirely removed the bad taste his remarks left in the mouths of the old soldiers and admirers of General Grant. The sentences of his speech to which the old soldiers take exception, were as follows: "In 1854 he (Grant) resigned from the army because he had to. He had yielded to the weakness of a taste for strong drink and rather than be court-martialed he left the army."

MURDER IN PARIS.

A sensation has been caused in the art world in Paris by the brutal murder of the distinguished painter, Adolphe Steinheil, and his mother-in-law, who were found strangled yesterday morning in the former's residence in the Rue de Vaugirard, which adjoins the studio of Seymour Thomas, the American portrait painter. The house was ransacked of everything of value.

M. Steinheil's wife, who was found gagged and bound to a bed, declares that the crime was committed by two men and a woman. The latter, she believes, she recognized as a model, who was employed by her husband.

Aside from the brutality of the crime, a feature of the affair is the almost inconceivable audacity with which it was perpetrated. The artist's house is situated close to a large printing works, where work is proceeding all night. A night watchman and a timekeeper are employed there, and an almost constant stream of workmen are coming and going all the time.

The murders obtained $1,600 in money and jewelry valued at $8,500.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Hallet Kilbourne, prominint in Washington for many years as a real estate agent Mr. Kilbourne was at one time business manager of the National Republican. Mrs. Bourgeat's family was at one time quite wealthy. Mrs. Bourgeat was educated in Europe. She was a competent linguist. Hugh Gordon, son of the famous Confederate general, who at one time was a senator from Georgia.

New York Stock Market.

New York, June 1.—Trading was strong all through the first hour, many houses that sold a week ago being prominent buyers. The passage of the currency bill was taken as an incentive for a renewal of the bull manipulation. Stocks which have been leaders advanced about 2 points. The room still believes that an extra dividend on Northern Pacific is near. The industrials made gains ranging from fractions to over 1 point. Boods steady.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

At ten minutes before Saturday midnight the first session of the Sixtieth Congress adjourned without day.

Earlier in the evening both houses had adopted resolutions stating that hour for the closing of the session, and appointed the usual committees to wait upon the president and apprise him of their decision. Immediately upon receiving this notification the president hurried to the Capital, signed the bill and Congress adjourned on the dot. The filibuster against the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill came to an end at 5:30 o'clock, and the bill was passed—ayes 43 and nays 22.

The last act before adjournment was the passage of the general deficiency bill, the last of the great government supply messures, which carries an appropriation of $30,718,848, of which $12,476,750 is to begin work authorized by the public buildings bill, the authorizations of which aggregate over $33,000,000. The House passed the bill at 8:30 last night. The bill itself was only briefly discussed in the House, but it furnished an opportunity to Messrs. Tawney and Fitzgerald, chairman and ranking minority member, respectively, of the committee on appropriations, to make the usual statements regarding the state of the national finances.

Mr. Tawney said: Insistent demands of the people and of the public service result in an increased aggregate.

The efforts of the majority to maintain a policy of greater economy were frustrated by an obstructive and recalcitrant minority.

Mr. Fitzgerald said:

A shameful squandering of the public funds.

The most profligate session in history.

Every energy seems to have been concentrated upon the task of emptying the treasury.

The House late in the day passed the omnibus public buildings bill.

Immediately after the official announcement in the House of the agreement by the Senate to the conference report on the currency bill, Speaker Cannon recognized Mr. Bartholdt, who called up the conference report on the measure. Tremendous applause followed his request that the rules be suspended and the report adopted.

A vigorous protest was made by Mr. Williams because of the fact that the conference report had been held up, in order to force the enactment of currency legislation that was not desired. He rather suspected, he said, that there had been "something of a running partnership between these two high potentates, the speaker and Mr. Bartholdt."

The vote on the adoption of the report stood yeas, 214; nays, 4; present and not voting, 8, those in opposition being Messrs. Alexander (Mo.), Crumpacker (Ind.), Fitzgerald (N. Y.) and Longworth (O).

During the late hours of the day the government liability bill also was put through under whip and spur, and in the general rush the omnibus territories bill received final action and the subsequent approval of the president.

Mr. Hale presented his statement regarding appropriations, which he characterized as an "alarming amount." He predicted a halt in the future in "these enormous expenditures."

Senator Culberson, of Texas, five minutes preceding the adjournment of the Senate last night, presented the usual resolutions thanking Vice President Fairbanks for the able and impartial manner in which he had presided over its deliberations. Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire was in the chair and the resolution was at once agreed to. Mr. Fairbanks was escorted in, made a feeling response and declared the Senate adjourned without delay. President Roosevelt and several members of his cabinet spent several hours at the Capitol.

The closing session of the House was the most disorderly in its history.

After the House, a few minutes after 9 o'clock, had adopted a resolution to adjourn, sine die, at ten minutes of 12, the members, republican and democratic alike, gave themselves over to merry-making, and they were aided and abetted in this laudable undertaking by about fifty members of the press gallery, who joined in the singing and occasionally turned loose an original paroxy of their own. On the floor nearly every member had an American flag. The efforts of the friends of Bryan and Cannon to raise their pictures to the highest elevation provoked much amusement.

As the hour agreed upon for adjournment, 11:50 drew near Speaker Cannon rapped for order and after a short speech declared the House adjourned.

THE CURRENCY BILL PASSED.

The LaFollette filibuster was broken in the Senate Saturday afternoon in a twinkling. It was done by a trick, the like of which had never before been witnessed in that body. The dramatic scenes attending thereon were hardly concluded before the necessary signatures of the speaker and the vice president were attached. And before the ink from the pens of those distinguished signers was dry the president arrived from the White House and wrote at the bottom of the parchment:

"Approved, Theodore Roosevelt."

The breaking of the filibuster promises to become historic. The infirmity of the blind senator from Oklahoma, Mr. Gore, was utilized to make the coup effective. Senator Aldrich, however, laid the wires and Vice President Fairbanks was an indispensable ally. For half an hour the vice president, usually amiable and considerate of senators in his rulings, wielded his gavel with an iron hand. No czar of the House ever surpassed him. With senators shaking their fists as they clamored in determined tones, the vice president ignored all but Senator Aldrich. He overruled points of order and thus forced the bill to its final passage.

Senator Gore had been making an impassioned speech, which held the close attention of the galleries and alike, of numerous senators. Senator Stone, who had preceded, expected to follow him. He could go on the moment Senator Gore concluded. Senator LaFollette had returned to the Capitol, but was in his committee room. He planned to proceed later, when Senator Stone had exhausted his vocabulary. Unable to see, the blind senator, having finished his peroration and supposing that Senator Stone was still nearby, sank into his seat.

"I demand the yeas and nays" said Mr. Aldrich like a flash. Before anyone could get a word in edgeways the reading clerk, who was in the secret, had called the first name and Senate bells were ringing for a vote. The rules prohibit a debate while a roll-call is in progress. Once the first name has been called—it happens that Senator Aldrich heads the roll, and he responded with feverish alacrity—the filibuster was broken.

There was a scramble to get the other filibusters. Senator Stone had stepped into the cloakroom—it is said on the invitation of one of Senator Aldrich's allies—where he was being detained by conversation.

Senator LaFollette rushed up stairs trisling with anger, but it was of no avail. The opportunity had passed to kill currency legislation at this session.

The foundation for these proceedings had been shrewdly laid. Probably no one but a veteran parliamentarian of long service as a senator could have succeeded. Earlier in the day Senator Aldrich found a chance to secure an order that when the vote on the currency bill conference report was taken it be by roll-call. That preliminary would have given sufficient time ordinarily for the opposition to start another speech. It had been forgotten when Senator Gore was concluding by all who were not informed about the plot.

The bill carried 43 to 22. Contrary to expectation, four republicans, Borah, Bourne, Brown and Heyburn, joined with them. It was announced that Kittridge and Hansbough, absentees from the Dakotas, would have voted no if present. Senator LaFollette will go down in the Record as having voted for the bill he filibustered against. He declared that he was doing so only that he might qualify for a motion to reconsider.

Before an audience that filled the galleries and included most of the House members Senators LaFollette the moment the vote was announced, thundered for recognition. He wanted to move reconsideration.

Senator Hepburn mad because the vice president had refused him a chance to speak when Senator Aldrich asked for the yeas and nays, was trying to get the vice presidential eye, standing in the center aisle, pointing a finger at his own chest. That was the emergency signal to fix the attention of the vice president. Senator LaFollette was compelled Friday evening to speak from his own desk, as the Senate rules required. "Sir," he roared, "I demand a chance to make a point of order. The Senator from Rhode Island is not at his desk. I have been. I was asking recognition when he addressed the chair."

"Point overruled," snapped the vice president. Every republican was tensely watching and eagerly co-operating to crush the Wisconsin senator of their own party. The Senate in the next few moments mercilessly ran over him. Senators Foraker and Hale were the chief lieutenants in the operation. There was a roll-call to reconsider and than a roll-call to lay that on the table, which absolutely precluded any possibility of getting the bill again before the Senate.

The big and unprecedented battle promised to become exceedingly important in a parliamentary way. It hardly presages a Senate cloture rule, but it has established precedents in that direction and demonstrates a new and old Senate saying that a determined majority can prevail against a determined filibuster. Probably all concerned, even Senator LaFollette, were glad that the end came. If he was to be beaten, as seemed certain, he preferred that to a long-endurance test. Had it continued a test of the vice-president's ruling that the maintenance of a quorum is not necessary and over the right to prohibit a senator from speaking more than once in a day, with the intepretation that a day is a legislative day, which may be prolonged to any length, would have been inevitable. Those matters involve great fundamental questions, touching the practice of the Senate for more than 100 years and profoundly affect the rights of the minority.

A bitter parliamentary battle might have been precipitated. Had the struggle once started it might have kept Congress in session indefinitely. As it is, Vice-President Fairbanks will likely be severely criticised by advocates of untrammeled speech in the Senate. They include practically all the older republicans who, however, were willing to go to any length to crush LaFollette.

It is reported that threats by the republican leaders of the Senate to pass a cloture bill, of which minorities in that body have stood in fear since the beginning of the republic, resulted in bringing the filibuster to an end. The republicans told the democrats they must use their influence to call off Messrs. Stone and Gore, else the "gag" rule would appear. The southern democrats remembered their successful all-session filibuster against the famous force bill, when they were led by the late Senator Gorman. Fearing that another such dire exigency may arise, the democrats were unwilling to see the majority of the Senate do anything to make it impossible, as they gave Mr. LaFollette but little support.

Some talk is going the rounds that Senator Stone was called off by his democratic colleagues during the half-hour recess, and that that is why he was not on hand when the blind Senator had done. Both Senator LaFollette and Senator Gore acquit Mr. Stone of such perfidy. No one can be blamed, they both say.

The drastic measures used to choke off the LaFollette filibuster has caused comment on the radical departure from the Senate traditions of allowing unlimited debate.

MONETARY COMMISSION.

Vice-President Fairbanks Saturday night announced the appointment of Senators Aldrich, Allison, Burrows, Hale, Knox, Daniel, Teller, Money and Bailey as members of the currency commission authorized by Congress. Mr. Knox is the only senator on the commission who is not a member of the committee on finance.

Speaker Cannon appointed members of the commission on behalf of the House as follows:

Messrs. Vreeland (N. Y.), Overstreet (Ind), Burton (Ohio), Weeks (Mass.), Bonynge (Col.) and Smith (Cal.), republicans; Padgett (Tenn.), Burgess (Texas) and Pujo (La.), democrats. Of these only Weeks, Burton and Pujo are members of the committee on banking and currency.

The newly created commission met yesterday and elected Senator Aldrich chairman and Representative Vreeland vice-chairman.

A committee was appointed to formulate a plan of action. The commission is to meet again in July.

Record-breaking Run.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 1.—All records for fast time between Chicago and Pittsburg were smashed when Dr. John Murphy, famous Chicago specialist, arrived here today on a special train. The special made the run of 458 miles from Chicago in 7 hours and 57 minutes. The former record was 9 hours. The record-breaking run was made so that Dr. Murphy could attend a consultation here at the bedside of Mrs. Thomas Crittenden, daughter of the late Thomas S. Oliver, millionaire steel magnate, who was operated on last week for appendicitis. In the wild night ride Mrs. Simon Schive was run down and fatally injured near Salem, O. A special hearing the doctor left Chicago at 12:58 this morning. The train crews instructions were to lose no time. The tracks had been cleared all the way to Pittsburg. The special whizzed through Salem at a speed of 90 miles an hour. Mrs. Schive was driving toward the tracks in a buggy, misjudged the speed of the special and attempted to cross in front of it. The woman sustained injuries which will prove fatal. The horse was killed and the buggy was reduced to splinters.

The Bubonic Plague.

Willemstadt, June 1.—Unless the Venezuelan authorities take more rigid steps to stamp out the bubonic plague that is now infesting their ports, it is probable that foreign powers will take the situation in hand and charge the cost of their remedial measures to President Castro.

The port at La Gauyra is again closed, and the business depression resulting from this is so serious that the steamship companies doing business out of La Gauyra made representations to their governments asking that the work of stamping out the plague be taken up. The methods employed by the Venezuelan government are considered wholly inadequate to cope with the situation.

New cases of the plague are being reported every day and the isolation of La Gauyra will continue indefinitely. It is feared that the port at Cabello will again have to be closed.

Six Violent Deaths.

Boston, June 1.—Six violent deaths occurred during the past 24 hours within fifty miles of Boston. For variety the record has seldom been surpassed. The giant, who is a former Cossack, is charged with murdering four women the night after he was discharged from the army. The giant came to this country and was betrayed to the police, who notified the Russian authorities. With Mills went Mathilda Maldin, 12 years of age, who will be returned to her parents near Liban.

"They should not have to go beyond the church for any essential and a place to court is an essential. So why not have one?" asked Rev. Snyder of his congregation.

The Mauretania's Speed.

New York, June 1.—Using but three of her propellers, the steamer Mauretania, according to a wireless message received by the Cunard Company, traveled 635 knots from noon May 30 to noon May 31, an average of 26.46 knots an hour, and a new record for a single day run. Had the Mauretania not disabled one of her propellers shortly after leaving Liverpool it is believed she would have broken the record of her sister ship, the Lusitania, for the course of 2,889 miles, which was four days, twenty hours and twenty-two minutes.

THE METHODISTS.

In the Methodist General Conference in Baltimore on Saturday reports were adopted among others requesting the board of bishops to name a commission to consider plans for the reduction in size of the general conference and for fixing a basis of representation, and authorizing and indorsing the Methodist brotherhood.

Election for the remaining secretaries and for the assistant secretaries of the various boards of the church were continued.

Its leading article gives the views of Roosevelt, Taft and La Follette upon "What the matter is in America, and what to do about it." "A burglar in the making," "Berlin and its burghers" and "Lassoing lions in Siwash" are of interest. "Wives of the pseudo-rich" is an unusual piece of work and "The Shadow-world" deals with psychic experiments. ROW ON A STEAMBOAT.

There were serious disorders on the steamer Queen Anne, running on the River View route, shortly before midnight Saturday night, which caused great excitement among the hundreds of excursionists on the boat. The steamer had just left River View for the return trip to this city and Washington when, it is stated, a number of young men aboard undertook to start a row. Beer bottles were thrown about and several fights occurred. A number of Washingtonians left the boat at Alexandria and went home on electric trains. As soon as the boat left her wharf at this port the melee started again, and in the middle of the river the captain of the steamboat sounded a distress whistle. A detail of police was sent from Washington and boarded the boat as it touched the wharf at that place, where, five of the most disorderly men were placed under arrest.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

The members of Alexandria and Belle Haven Councils, Junior Order of United Americans, conducted the annual memorial services at the Methodist Protestant Cemetery yesterday afternoon in honor of deceased members of the order. Addresses were made by Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of Grace Church, and Rev. J. R. Sevier, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. A large number of persons gathered in the cemetery to witness the exercises. Earlier in the day the graves of the members of the organization were decorated by committees from the respective councils. Over each was placed a tiny American flag and an emblem of the order.

ASCENSION DAY SERVICES.

Ascension day services were held at Christ Church yesterday evening at 4 o'clock and were attended by the members of Old Dominion Commandery, Knights Templar. A special sermon was preached by Rev. W. J. Morton, and an elaborate musical programme was rendered and greatly enjoyed. The members of the commandery attended in full uniform and among those present were the Grand Commander of the District of Columbia and the Eminent Commander of Potomac Commandery of Washington.

ADDRESS BY MR. BARRETT.

Hon. John Barrett will give an address on "Strange Expressions in Strange Lands" at Lee Camp Hall on Friday evening, June 5, at 8 o'clock. The address was promised conditionally some time ago, but Mr. Barrett's work in Washington and a series of addresses through New England that he has just given has filled his time to overflowing, but his many admirers in this city are congratulating themselves that they have been fortunate enough to secure him this season.

FINED TWO DOLLARS EACH.

Two dealers in fruit, soda water, &c., were cited to appear in the Police Court this morning to answer charges of conducting business on Sunday. They were fined $2 each with the understanding that should they again violate the law $5 would be exacted from them. The accused noted an appeal. It is understood some proprietors of drug stores where soda water has been dispensed are anxious to have the law enforced against all strikers.

SERMON ON REFORM LEGISLATION.

Rev. Bertrand P. Judd, assistant superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, which has its headquarters in Washington, preached in the Washington Street Methodist Episcopal Church South yesterday morning. His subject was, "The Vision that makes the Reformer." In the course of his discourse Mr. Judd referred to the reform legislation enacted by the national Congress.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES.

The services last night in the Second Presbyterian Church in connection with the children's foreign mission day were well-attended and interesting throughout. The programme, which had been prepared with care, was well-rendered. There were suitable hymns, responsive readings, solos and recitations. Toward the close of the exercises Rev. J. R. Sevier, pastor of the church, delivered an interesting address.

LARDERS ROBBED.

The residence of Mrs. Eva G. Mushbach, 418 north Washington street, was entered by thieves last Saturday night, and a ham and other articles composing the larder stolen. The residences of Mr. Harry Hammond, 225 north Columbus street, and Mrs. Smithers, 713 Cameron street, were also entered. In two of the places the thieves carried off all articles that were in the refrigerators.

CANOE FOUND.

After the heavy wind of last Saturday evening a canoe was found in front of Mr. John Swift's home, on the opposite Maryland shore. A suit case was found in the canoe. The case bore a tag of the Atlantic Transport Company, on which "W. M. R. Grigsby, 126 F street northwest, Washington," had been written. It is supposed that the canoe belongs in Washington.

YESTERDAY.

The temperature yesterday was oppressive especially in the afternoon. There was, however, an average number of attendants at the various churches. The river was alive until after dark with naphtha launches and sailboats, and many people patronized the excursion steamers.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Virginia A. Smoot has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Kate Taylor Smoot, to Signor Paolo Tuccimei, of Rome, Italy. The wedding will take place tomorrow, Tuesday evening, June 2, at 6 o'clock, at the home of the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Kate U. Taylor, on Fairfax street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Father Kelly, of St. Mary's Catholic Church. A reception will be held immediately after the ceremony. Among those who will be present are the Italian Ambassador, Baron Mayer des Planches, and the baroness, the Italian consuls of Washington and Philadelphia, Cav. Ravioli and Cav. Primozzo. Mr. Thomas B. Murphy has returned from Richmond where he went last week on business. He says the publication in the Times Dispatch of that city, reproduced in the Gazette, on Saturday, to the effect that he contemplated moving to Richmond was a mistake, as he has no idea of leaving Alexandria. This will be gratifying to Mr. Murphy's many friends here.

A very quiet wedding took place Friday evening last at the parsonage of the Second Presbyterian Church, on St. Asaph street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Sevier, and the contracting parties were Mr. R. R. Rose, clerk in the master mechanic's office at the Potomac yards, and Miss Lena E. Beach, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. J. H. Beach. This will be a surprise to their many friends in both Alexandria and Washington.

Mr. James A. Marsteller and Miss Mary Lillian Jones, of Fairfax county, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a few friends, at Grace Church rectory by Rev. Edgar Carpenter. Mr. and Mrs. Marsteller will reside on Duke street extended, and have the best wishes of their many friends.

MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 1, 1908.

The Efficacy of Prayer.

Among my esteemed neighbors there is a family known for the piety of its members and their implicit confidence in the efficacy of prayer. One of the daughters, Miss Kate B., has almost reached the age when she could be referred to ungallantly as an old maid. She is the target for many a good natured quip pertaining to her alleged hopes and endeavors in the direction of matrimony.

Not long ago a certain society of young men which had interested itself in a campaign for higher saloon license sent a committee to visit the homes of the district and obtain signatures to a high license petition. When this committee, numbering half a dozen members, ascended the front steps at the B. home my friend's wife was the first to see it through the front window.

"Lawa, John!" she exclaimed to her husband. "See all those young men coming to visit us."

Mr. B. glanced out of the window, noted the number of the invading force and remarked, with an air of conviction:

"Humph! Kate's been praying again."—San Francisco Call.

An Anecdote of Ellsworth.

There was a characteristic incident in the early life of Colonel Ellsworth, the brilliant young lawyer who was one of the first notable victims of the civil war. His struggles to gain a foothold in his profession were attended by many hardships and humiliating privations. Once, finding the man he was looking for on a matter of business in a restaurant, he was invited to partake of the luncheon to which his acquaintance was just sitting down. Ellsworth was ravenously hungry, almost starving, in fact, but he declined courteously, but firmly, asking permission to talk over the business that had brought him thither while the other went on with the meal.

The brave young fellow in telling the story in after years confessed that he suffered positive agony at the sight and smell of the tempting food.

"I could not in honor accept hospitality I could not reciprocate," was his simple explanation of his refusal. "I might starve, but I could not sponge!"—Marion Harland's "Complete Etiquette."

Starting Early.

Wangles was married recently, and there was a regular hail of rice, confetti and old shoes for good luck as he got into the cab. Moreover, on turning round he was struck above the eye by a friendly shoe with rather a heavy heel.

As the cab immediately drove away no notice was taken of the accident, and, despite the large handkerchief tied by his sobbing bride over his injured optic, the blood still flowed down Wangles' face.

When they arrived at their destination the newly created Benedict went out to a doctor to get the bleeding stopped.

"How did you come by this, my man?"

"Well, you see, doctor—aw—I got married this morning, and"— commenced Wangles, when the doctor broke in:

"What! Has she started already?"—London Answers.

Circumstantial Evidence.

"You say you met the defendant on a street car and that he had been drinking and gambling," said the attorney for the defense during the cross examination.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Did you see him take a drink?"

"No."

"Did you see him gambling?"

"No."

"Then how do you know," demanded the attorney, "that the defendant had been drinking and gambling?"

"Well," explained the witness, "he gave the conductor a blue chip for his car fare and told him to keep the change."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Lucky Horseshoe.

The Australians when they find a horseshoe throw it over their shoulder. A lady in Sydney found one and threw it gracefully over her shoulder. It went through a hatter's window and hit a customer who was trying on a new hat. This gentleman, under the impression that one of the shopmen in a fit of temporary insanity had played the trick, promptly struck him and sent him through the plate glass window. A general melee ensued, although on consideration nobody knew what it was all about.

The Old, Old Story.

His Thanks.

"I notice," said the young man's employer, "that you are always about the first in the office in the mornings."

"Thank you, sir."

"Why do you thank me?"

"For noticing it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Laundering Shirt Waists.

Mathilde, the popular washerwoman, having sprained her wrist, was unable to do her week's ironing, but she stood over the young Irish girl she had hired and directed the work.

"Maybe, Bridgety" observed Mathilde, with a watchful eye on her understudy, "you'll t'ink, you, dat all shirt vaist ees iron alike. Maybe you'll t'ink she ees som' easy job for iron shirt vaist for hall dose lady of different shape.

Congressional Bell Signals.

On the floor of the house the doorkeeper has his desk, and it is here that the bells are struck that give notice of the needs of congress. One bell calls for tellers when the house is in committee of the whole; two bells indicate a call for yeas and nays; three declare a recess; with four bells the red light over the door goes out; five bells mean a "call of the house," under which the sergeant at arms is supposed to summarily arrest any member on sight and bring him in, whether on foot or horseback. Any member who is not present at a call of the house is subjected to a severe reprimand. Looking down the corridor, the going out of the red light gives the curious suggestion of the tail end of a passenger train dashing through a tunnel. While the red light burns bright and clear it means that congress is under way, but when the light winks and goes out then the visitors understand that the wheels of legislation have ceased to revolve.—National Magazine.

Countermanded.

A very devout clergyman had just married a couple and, as was his custom, offered a fervent prayer, invoking the divine blessing upon them. As they seemed to be worthy folk and not overburdened with this world's goods, he prayed, among other things, for their material prosperity and besought the Lord to greatly increase the man's business, laying much stress on this point.

In filling out the blanks it became necessary to ask the man his business, and, to the minister's horror, he said, "I keep a saloon."

In telling the story to his wife afterward the clergyman said that as he wrote down the occupation he whispered:

"Lord, you needn't answer that prayer."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lord Kelvin and the Cable.

It is perhaps not generally known that the success of the Atlantic cable was due to the calculations and experiments of the late Lord Kelvin, at that time plain William Thomson. He discovered that the current through a long cable would arrive gradually at the receiving end and devised the apparatus which rendered it possible to utilize such a current for making the Morse signals. It was through disregard of his theoretical predictions that the first Atlantic cable, in 1858, was ruined by too powerful currents. Without his mirror galvanometer to translate into visible signals the delicate impulses received through the cable the enterprise would have been a complete failure.

How to Fill Up Holes In Wood.

It sometimes becomes necessary to fill up cracks or dents in fine woodwork, furniture, floors, etc. The following is the best way of doing it: White tissue paper is steeped and perfectly softened in water and by thorough kneading with glue transformed into a paste and by means of ochers (earth colors) colored as nearly as possible to the shade of the wood. To the paste calcined magnesia is then added, and it is forced into the cracks or very firmly to the wood and after drying retains its smooth surface.

An Apology.

An excited military looking gentleman entered the editorial sanctum one afternoon, exclaiming: "That notice of my death is false, sir. I will horsewhip you within an inch of your life, sir, if you don't apologize in your next issue."

The editor inserted the following next day: "We extremely regret to announce that the paragraph which stated that Major Blazer was dead is without foundation."—Detroit Free Press.
